FEATURED ECONOMIC INDICATOR

Consumers Say Current Conditions Improving

Building Permits on privately-owned housing units increased in February to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,018,000. This is 7.7% above the revised January rate and above analysts' estimates for February. This forward looking metric suggests that weaker housing numbers in January were largely weather related.

RECENT NEWS

Fed Changes Language on Interest Rates

The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) dropped the 6.5% unemployment guidance which had been used to help communicate when the Fed would increase short-term interest rates. The Fed's new statement said the FOMC will assess a broader range of factors in deciding when to increase the target fed funds rate. After the meeting, the Fed released documents showing that 10 of 16 members expected the Fed would raise rates to 1% or higher by the end of 2015. This is up from December when most officials saw the Fed moving rates to 0.75% or lower. Fed Chairman Janet Yellen also spoke to how long the Fed might wait to hike interest rates after ending the Quantitative Easing program. While her comments were not strongly worded, she surprised the market by saying it could be as soon as six months, which would be around April 2015.
